“ La Côte, of light and freshness

A short distance from the village of St-Emilion, Larcis Ducasse is a hillside vineyard, precisely at the heart of the Grande Côte, on the Côte Pavie.

Larcis Ducasse's plots form a huge natural south-facing staircase, a "millefeuille" of different clay and limestone soils distinguished by the presence of natural springs that originate beneath the limestone in the blue clay...

Dryness and humidity coexist here, with a permanent contrast between the bright south-facing slopes and the enduring freshness of the clay-limestone, from which the vines draw their energy.
